MEYER WAS ILL, NOT DRUNK.

Yet the Elevated Guards Threw Him Bodily Downstairs.

Still in a Serious Condition from His Injuries.

Edward N. Meyer, the victim of the alleged brutal assault by two Elevated Railway employees at Ninety-ninth street and Third Avenue station last evening, is better to-day. He has regained consciousness and is now lying at his home, 217 Third Avenue, in a bruised and battered condition.

It was feared last night that his skull had been fractured, but Dr. David Franklin, who has attended him, says that this is not so, although Mr. Meyer suffers from a severe concussion of the brain.

This, together with his bruises and contusions, and the fact that he has been ill for a long time past, renders his condition still critical, and he is not yet out of danger.

Mr. Meyer is brother of Peter F. Meyer, Richard Croker's partner in the real-estate business. Mrs. Meyer said this morning that she had not heard nothing from her husband's brother, and did not suppose he had heard of the case until this morning, for she had been so occupied with nursing her husband that she had not been able to send word to his family. Besides, she was all alone, as they have no children.

There are two other brothers living in this city. When they first brought her husband in last night, she said, "I thought he was dead. Four gentlemen came with him in a cab, and he was all about the case. I don't know what happened."

"They did not give me their names, and I don't know what happened," she said. "They told me that they would appear as witnesses against the brutal trainman who threw my husband down the stairs."

"What they told me was that they had taken him to the bottom and lay unconscious on the steps. They said he seemed to have fainted away in the cars, and was not drunk, but sick."

"They didn't have told me that, because a drinking man. He has been sick for the last two months with a stomach trouble, and has been able to eat enough food to keep up his strength."

"When they brought him in, he was terribly bruised and his head and face were unconscious. After Dr. Franklin came he recovered consciousness a few moments, but could not tell anything about the assault."

"When he came to himself this morning, he told me that he had been at Forty-fourth street and Twelfth Avenue, where he is employed in the Post office, about 6 o'clock last night. He was feeling very ill, and before he took the cross-street car, he stopped to drink a milk punch, thinking it might give him strength. He had to stand up all the way to Ninety-ninth street, where he was thrown down by the car. He does not recall anything that occurred after that until he found himself in a hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Franklin."

"One of the gentlemen who brought him home says that at Ninety-ninth street the guard on the train shook and punched him, and tried to make him get up. As he could give no answer, the guard began to curse him, and finally, with the assistance of another man from the station, they dragged him out of the car in his helpless condition and deliberately threw him down the stairs."

"I do not know the names of the men who were responsible for the outrage, but I am sure they will be found out. The persons who brought my husband here did not know, but I think that the matter will be fully investigated."

The case had not been reported to the police this morning, and the One Hundred and Fourth street station, which only a few blocks away, the sergeant in charge knew nothing about it.

Mrs. Brown, colored, who lives near the corner of Ninety-ninth street, said that she saw some people bring a man down the stairs, and she saw him being carried to a cab and driven away. She was bleeding from a cut across the forehead. Some one hailed a cab and the man was put into it, and it drove away. There was no policeman around at the time.

The employees of the Elevated road at Ninety-ninth street had evidently been warned to say nothing about the matter, for they declared all knowledge of the occurrence. It was learned that the name of the station who had charge of the platform after 7 o'clock last evening was Flanagan, and that he was a man who was alleged to have committed the outrage.

The police of the One Hundred and Fourth street station will also make an investigation. Policemen Sharkey, who is said to have been on duty at that post office, and the several who are alleged to have committed the outrage.

Manhattan Field Prices Too High for the Metropolitans.

Ross and Daly Matched for a Wrestling Championship.

Something went amiss in the arrangements for holding the annual championship contests of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. on Manhattan Field and these events are now scheduled for Oct. 7 on the grounds of the New Jersey Athletic Club at Bayonne. The figures for the rental of Manhattan Field are said to have been set altogether at too lofty a notch for the Metropolitan Association, and they eagerly accepted the generous offer of the Jersey organization to use the grounds free of charge. This will convince a great many persons that they can get to any point in Jersey easier than to Manhattan Field. The entries for the different events include nearly all the champions of the world, and the competition in one way, for it will suffer little, if any, expense; still it cannot be expected that a profit-paying throng will journey to Bayonne to see the games. To be sure, it is fully as convenient as Manhattan Field, but it will be difficult to convince a great many persons that they can get to any point in Jersey easier than to Manhattan Field.
